MARKET TAKES ANOTHER SLUMP

Recovery of Values in Wall Street Last Week too Rapid and Due to Relaxation in the Money Market—Future Course Very Doubtful.

(By I. N. Kinsey)
GLOBE, April 12.—The position of the market and prosperity of the country is well described in the following article by a well known financial writer:

"Marked relaxation in the money market, resulting from an abundant measure of treasury relief, the failure of any dire predictions to materialize, either at home or abroad; the elimination from the situation of some disturbing factors and the subordination, for the time being, of other influences, caused last week an extensive recovery in stock prices. Bonds also improved materially. In that division the best features of the security market developed.

"This change, which has taken place in Wall street, has been rapid, indeed, to persons who had not reckoned fully upon the influence of nearly $20,000,000 of public money poured into the market within a fortnight.

"One hears not unnaturally in certain quarters of Wall street that the recovery in speculative securities has been too rapid to be sustained long. Possible such is the case, for the market just emerging from a collapse which has done great injury has progressed far and fast in its recovery. It is scarcely logical in the sequence of events to look for development of a bull market, growing out of a measure of relief devised to check or avert panicky conditions, and a 'bear panic' such as Wall street saw, has never in the past afforded a strong foundation for a bull movement.

"Forty million dollars and whatever other sum may be added to it arising out of government refunding operations is not an inexhaustible fund. Judging by the loan expansion that has existed in New York, despite liquidation, and by the very much depleted reserves of interior institutions, there is still a heavy demand on resources.

"Some business contraction is expected, and, in fact, is now openly predicted by practically every important financier, but it has not shown to any extent as yet, and it may, in fact, be deferred by this apparently abnormal condition caused in the New York money market by the outpouring of treasury funds."

ket and prove to the public that there is a great future, especially in the copper industry.

Railroad stocks are now good investments and will climb up and show a good profit in the near future.

The drop this week in stocks cannot be considered the beginning of a panic. It is only a neglected market. The easy money rate, it being quoted at 2½ per cent today, proves this conclusively.
